No. 33

Here we go on another week, and right at the moment, it does not look as if it is starting out too well. The weather forecast is for rain, as you can plainly see, if you look outside. Maybe it will stop soon, and you can get outside, and continue with whatever it is that you want to do. Anyway, think sun, and maybe it will work!

FROM WEST CAMP-Tonight at 9:00, West Dining Hall, the British contingent will present a slide presentation based on Scouting in England. Plan to attend.

There is no program after dinner on Tuesday or on Thursday. Plan to attend the Triangle/R Rodeo starting at 7:30 PM, on Thursday. It should be great!

There will be a SPL Meeting at 1:15, West Camp Office.

Camp Shower clean-up has been great. Campsites are looking good! Swannie

From the action-packed Eco-Con Lodge-Forestry tree identification hike at 2:00 today. Environmental Science people; keep up the good work! Start your reports soon.

All oral requirements for Eco-Con merit badges should be completed by Wednesday.

Astronomers should come in Tuesday morning for sun-stick demonstration. Clear night 10:30 means Star-hike. Meet where we did last time.

Wilderness Survival Overnight-Wednesday 2:00 'til Thursday breakfast. For more information, see Stephan or Tony.

Come in and enter our nature drawing contest. Prizes for the best entries!!

Field Sports-Archery-Attention all new troops in camp, and everyone else too. We've got a new program at archery this year. The Camp Archery Aware Program offers a chance for everybody to earn an award, regardless of size or ability. See me for details and sign-up.

Congratulations to Ralph Townsend of Troop 22, who disproved the theory that "anything that goes up, must come down". Ralph shot an arrow and missed the target, so far that his arrow stuck into the big tree at the end of the range, 30 feet off the ground. Good shot, Ralph!!

(More coming, so please continue!)

EASTERN ZONE - Chippewa Village has shower clean-up today. See your commissioner.

Horseback riding for East Camp is Tuesday, and Thursday at 2, 3 and 4:00. See Tom if you want to go.

A Scout is clean; let's try to keep our camp that way also.

ECO/CON-Today at 2:00, Env. Sci. Group A; Group B 2:30. Group C 3:00, Group D, 3:30. Be prepared to finish orals. Soil & Water Conservation meeting at 2:00. Fish & Wildlife meeting at 4:00.

WATERFRONT-Troop leaders-sign up today for Troop Swim times for this week. Starting today, we will have a free swim for anyone that wishes to participate from 3:00 to 4:00.

FROM FAMILY CAMP-All folks in Family Camp are also invited to attend the Slide Presentation in West Dining Hall this evening at 8:45. Members of the British Contingent will be there to show the slides, and visit with you for a few minutes. What better way to spend an evening, than to meet new friends, and learn something about a country that most of us will probably never have an opportunity to visit. So, come on down!

Have you tried some of the fantastic ice cream concoctions that the gals in the Country Store can whip up for you? Or, what about the maple sugar coated cashews? If you have a sweet tooth, these may be your undoing, so, sample with care.

Well, now that we have made you hungry, we will sign off for now. Hope you all have a super day, and try to stay dry. Wear your raincoat, and or carry your umbrella, and just go ahead and do your own thing. While you're at it, remember to smile. You just might brighten someone's day. See ya'.....
